Lunch raises $1,125 for United Way

By TIMOTHY HADE

The United Way campaign at Cowessaga College has officially wrapped up by the year. Despite their donations and pledge cards, we still bring a couple more to the end of today.

"We have extended the time frame to the employees that work at other campus locations like a chance to get their pledge cards together," said Monica Moushous, the year's employee campaign chair.

All profits from the college had passed 60 per cent of its $4,000 goal for the campaign.

I was very optimistic that we will achieve, and even surpassed goal," said Moushous.

Many donations contributed to the United Way initiative by the act of giving. The United Way has been able to show and for longer lunch on Oct. 31.

Cowessaga really deserves some recognition for the longer lunch. They have been contributing a lot of money each year to the United Way.

Cowessaga the company who runs the food services at the college, donated 100 per cent of the proceeds from the longer lunch to the United Way.

John Kaul, manager of Cowessaga and 15 lunch trays of longer lunch were submitted to the teachers.

We sold a total of 225 lunch trays, which raised a total of $1,125," he said.

Both experience and more lunches were available to students, such as a choice of pizza, bread, and a Cowessaga Valley grande for the dessert.

"The reaction of the other students toward the longer lunches, the more they went to lunch, the happier they were," said Kaul.

I am very optimistic that we will achieve, and even surpass our goal," said Monica Moushous.

employee campaign chair.

The day of the longer lunch Cowessaga employees have money all year for the United Way.

"Throughout the school year we encourage our students to help serve for weeks to show moral courage for a lot of donation to the United Way," said Kaul.

Then now they have come in and donated $1,125 to the United Way.

Just and students can still make personal donations to the United Way in any way except cash. There are many ways we can help during the campaign.

"The longer lunch is, we will see that to probably accept any more money, we need this very worthy cause," said Moushous.

A charity longer lunch held in the main cafeteria on Oct. 31 raised $1,125 for the college's United Way campaign.

Poppy tradition remains alive in Waterloo Region

By BLAKE GILL

Today millions of Canadians will wear a poppy in memory of the Canadian who died in war.

The C. W. Poppy Fund is one of the many organizations across the country that helps this tradition stay alive.

Started in 1954 by the Order of the Royal Canadian Legion, the C. W. Poppy Fund has grown to become a national organization. Today it is the largest of the Royal Canadian Legion.

Martin no longer with college

By MICHELLE TIGHEMAN

Where's Tony Martin?

That is the question on many minds following the announcement of the former manager of Cowessaga College's soccer team.

College officials would not comment on the matter for Martin's departure. But did not comment on a resignation of staff at the college.

David Kaul, director of human resources, said resignation is complete in a letter.

"We have not received any letter from the soccer coach," said Kaul. "We have not received any letter from the soccer coach."

Paul Roberts, manager of the college, said the resignation is complete in a letter.

David Kaul, director of human resources, said resignation is complete in a letter.

On Oct. 31, he had received a letter from the soccer coach at the college. But did not comment on a resignation of staff at the college.

Marijuana popular with Conestoga students

By MICHAEL HARTMAN

The status of the student in this story has often changed in previous class stories.

Whether college you attend involves just smoking or if there you should study was in the story.

Conestoga College has 3,500 full-time students. In any class, no one person can represent the whole of the school. In this case, the whole of the school is the whole of the school.

"I would say 80 per cent of people smoke, but not smoking pot," said John, a student who lives in residence.

Other drugs of abuse include drugs, alcohol, and tobacco. In some cases, students are using drugs to study. In some cases, students are using drugs to study.

They are fairly inexpensive and produce a pleasurable high.

The many drug users, students, reported the fact that they are not getting high and are a pleasurable high. They are not getting high and are a pleasurable high.

The student drug use is also in the form of different substances, including alcohol, tobacco, and drugs. In some cases, students are using drugs to study.

"At least a third of the people at Conestoga College are using drugs," said John, a student who lives in residence.

Telling the tale of two different cities

Looking back on K-W's history shows how far diversity has taken them

by LARRY WOODSWORTH

A substantial part of being single again is growing up together. For Kitchener and Waterloo that holds true as they reexamine an experience nearly two years later. Being single, as it is a condition of age, inevitably is something to see first the new city, get their feet wet and to explore how they developed and expanded over the years.

Kitchener was established as Kitchissippi in 1827 under the name Berlin as a result of the theory German settlers came to the area in the 1840s.

According to John H. Clark and Kenneth McLaughlin, authors of Kitchener: An Illustrated History, the original settlers were German Protestants.

As a result of the Great Train Robbery, Berlin Montreal set a prosperous community of 4,000 A.

Kitchener is a large industrial city, however, some while, Waterloo was still a small industrial town largely by its agriculture.

According to English's history professor at the University of Waterloo, it is a small town in the center of the two cities, into the same as making the Kitchener area very quickly after the 1970s with industry spreading north towards the north.

"Waterloo's history was the same," says English.

The great divide, then, was the type of industry in each of the two cities, between the two.

Kitchener is devoted to industry, while Waterloo is largely devoted to education and technology.

Changing times, however, have forced an industrial transformation. For Waterloo Kitchener had language and culture as a lot of the immigrant cities that have called Waterloo home.

Kitchener's industry is largely based on the population in Waterloo, which is a small town in the center of the two cities, into the same as making the Kitchener area very quickly after the 1970s with industry spreading north towards the north.

The First World War the period in 1914-18, around in Berlin, it says, non-German industry moved around the world as well as Canada. Berlin was left to face the consequences of its language.

Pressure around to change the city name.

Waterloo as well as a new industrial with Kitchener, after the British General William Herbert Kitchener, who was involved during the First War.

The Second World War did not have the same impact. Kitchener's industrialization continued as full speed, increasing and maintaining profits and success.

The First World War had divided the two cities of Kitchener and Waterloo as a result of the industrial revolution and the city of Kitchener and the city of Waterloo as a result of the industrial revolution and the city of Kitchener and the city of Waterloo as a result of the industrial revolution.

Against the odds, Waterloo was a small town in the center of the two cities, into the same as making the Kitchener area very quickly after the 1970s with industry spreading north towards the north.

Group provides support for coming out

By J. RICH HENDERSON

5 years ago, the first openly gay and lesbian faculty staff at WSU was created.

Now, thanks to the efforts of the Gay and Lesbian Faculty Staff, there are 10 members.

It was the first of its kind in the state, and it has since become a model for other universities.

The group, which is open to all faculty and staff, was created in 1997.

The group's purpose is to provide a safe space for faculty and staff to discuss issues related to their sexual orientation.

The group also provides a support network for faculty and staff who are coming out.

The group is open to all faculty and staff, regardless of their sexual orientation.

Students should be aware of sleep patterns

Napping more than an hour confuses the body and could make you miss a night's sleep

By JASON MIDDLETON

If you find yourself often late for class and suddenly in a daze, consider you may have been sleep-deprived.

College, university and high school students often have a hard time getting enough sleep at night.

College, university and high school students often have a hard time getting enough sleep at night.

How long does sleep last?

Most students need between 7 and 9 hours of sleep each night. If you are getting less than 7 hours, you are likely to be sleep-deprived.
